This volume explores the potentials of advanced technologies as they apply to education and training and looks at efforts to exploit these potentials in three areas: vocational-technical training, formal education, and corporate programs. An introduction, "The Age of Knowledge Work" (Emmanuel T. Velasco, Gayla C. Carreon), defines concepts--future work, knowledge workers, information superhighway, networks, interactive multimedia, and other terms that arise to describe rapid developments in the fields of information technology and electronic communications. It describes the changes that technology has wrought in the world of work and the effects that these have had on

Other areas. Chapter I presents a summary of the findings from surveys on the use of computer technology in the three sectors in the Philippines: "Using Computer Technology for Worker Education and Training (National Manpower and Youth Council Survey Results)"; "In Search of the Leading Edge in Formal Education (Philippine Association of Colleges and Schools of Business Survey Results)"; and "Computer-Based Training in Business and Industry (Philippine Society for Training and Development Survey Results)" Chapter II presents the sectoral action plans, as generated by groups involved in separate conferences of the three sectors. The three sections are as follows: "Using Computers as Skills Instructors: The Evolution of a Policy" (Rony V. Diaz); "Turning Classrooms into Interactive Networks" (Elizabeth S. Samia); and "Technologizing the Knowledge Worker" (Emmanuel T. Velasco). A conclusion, "A Policy Response to the Challenge: The Establishment of a Leading-Edge Educational Technology Center," provides a summary of a proposal to establish a national center to rationalize the adoption of leading-edge educational technologies. Appendixes include the following: House Bill No. 12328: An Act Creating the Leading-Edge Educational Technologies (LEET) Foundation, a congressional initiative with its basis in the proposal discussed in the conclusion; detailed results of the three surveys; a workplan for the establishment of the LEET Center; 25 endnotes; and author biographies. Contains 50 references. (YLB)

By providing a much-needed grammar review, along with a variety of readings that will suit the tastes of many different teaching preferences, this textbook will help students make the transition from beginning Latin to the intermediate level. The book is filled with exercises and a balance of prose and verse readings organized around five topics. After using College Latin, students will be reacquainted with all the major Latin grammar and able to hold their own in the "authors courses" that make up most intermediate Latin curriculums.

A hands-on approach to tasks and techniques in data stream mining and real-time analytics, with examples in MOA, a popular freely available open-source software framework. Today many information sources—including sensor networks, financial markets, social networks, and healthcare monitoring—are so-called data streams, arriving sequentially and at high speed. Analysis must take place in real time, with partial data and without the capacity to store the entire data set. This book presents algorithms and techniques used in data stream mining and real-time analytics. Taking a hands-on approach, the book demonstrates the techniques using MOA (Massive Online Analysis), a popular, freely available open-source software framework, allowing readers to try out the techniques after reading the explanations. The book first offers a brief introduction to the topic, covering big data mining, basic methodologies for mining data streams, and a simple example of MOA. More detailed discussions follow, with chapters on sketching techniques, change, classification, ensemble methods, regression, clustering, and frequent pattern mining. Most of these chapters include exercises, an MOA-based lab session, or both. Finally, the book discusses the MOA software, covering the MOA graphical user interface, the command line, use of its API, and the development of new methods within MOA. The book will be an essential reference for readers who want to use data stream mining as a tool, researchers in innovation or data stream mining, and programmers who want to create new algorithms for MOA.
